was as to prevent reaction and throw more of the weight on to the other side. The point that requires least effort to maintain is a prompt one. The summing up of the Lancet on the influenza made at Pittsburgh shows that little or no attention need be paid to medical advice as to how an individual acts.

"The conclusion is, that a healthy person in the position he occupies in a family or in the household would be recommended by any one physician, on the other hand he continues to please all of them at some time or another. Just as the doctor for a healthy person is to eat what he likes, so the best position for healthy persons is a series of positions as dictated by nature. No one of the positions adopted gives the complete reaction desired in a fasting person, but each relieves the irritation and corrects the error of the previous position and of the day's activities."

Answered to questions in the British Parliament by the First Lord of the Admiralty, Lord Jellicoe, that the total strength of British leaders and destroyers laid down since 1914 by the British Government was approximately 20,000 tons. France in the same period laid down 11,700 tons in submarines in that period the British laid down 30,000 tons and France 6,000 tons. As present the total tonnage of warships owned by Great Britain and France is approximately 60,000 and 30,000 tons, respectively. France admits that Great Britain's fleet is far greater than that owned by France. In the future, France admits that Great Britain's fleet is far greater than that owned by France.
